

The People's Republic of China Yearbook (“China Yearbook” for short), first published in 1981, is China’s only comprehensive national yearbook. It is officially endorsed by the General Office of the State Council, approved by the National Press and Publication Administration, and supervised by Xinhua News Agency. Published by Xinhua Publishing House, the China Yearbook is available in both Chinese and English. The Chinese version has been published annually for 44 consecutive years and is distributed worldwide.

The annual editions of the China Yearbook are regularly collected by Chinese government agencies, foreign embassies and consulates in China, institutions of higher education, enterprises, and renowned overseas libraries. From 2021 to 2023, the China Yearbook (Chinese version) was on prominent display on President Xi Jinping’s bookshelf during his annual New Year address. The China Yearbook offers comprehensive, well-documented and authoritative content, further solidifying its status as an definitive publication for understanding, researching, and investing in China.
